GAME CHARACTERIZED BY CONSTANT WRANGLING ON PART OF MARYLAND.

KIRKMAN DISTINGUISHES HIMSELF

In the last game on University Field before the Georgetown game next Saturday, the George Washington University football eleven defeated the strong team representing the Maryland Medical College by the score of 11 to 0.

Had the game not been marred by the continual wrangling of the Maryland captain, assisted by one or two other expert debaters on his team, the crowd would have gone away impressed with the fact that they had seen a great game of football. There is no doubt that Captain Bielaski and his band of athletes played better than in any game this season, but the fine plays of the Washington eleven were overlooked by the crowd in their anger at having to stand by and listen to a war of words instead of a football battle.

Senor Rodriguez, the doughty captain of the Maryland doctors, undoubtedly made a wrong selection in his profession. If he ever gets a medical case, it is feared by many that he will talk his patient to death. He should have been a lawyer, who sometimes finds occasion to give vent to volumes of sound. The manner in which the Cuban captain contested every decision of Referee Kelly offset his good playing. There is no use in denying that he is a fine football player, but hardly any organized team in the country would tolerate the headstrong and absolutely groundless protests which he makes to every decision. He delayed the game so that it was necessary to cut the second half short on account of darkness. So much for Senor Rodriguez. We predict a famous career for him as an intercollegiate debater.

The George Washington team showed splendid training and condition. Not a man was taken out of the game, and none of them had time called for recuperation. Woods hurt his injured shoulder near the close of the last half, and suffered great pain. At one time it was thought he would have to be taken out of the game, but like the hero that he is, he stuck to his post of duty, although he was a fit patient for Dr. Phillips' corps of nurses.

Under the expert management of Mr. Kirkman, the backfield worked like clock machinery, and the line held well on defence. When Kirkman called for an opening in the line for Bielaski or one of his assistants, it was usually there, and big enough to drive a cart through.

Although every man on the team played a star game, the work of Kirkman stood head and shoulders above all the rest. He varied his plays in a manner to bewilder the Baltimore boys. On one down he would plunge a play into the line, and on the next it would be an end run. His quarterback runs were sensational, and never failed to gain. All three of the Washington backs were good ground gainers, and Frank West went over for both touchdowns. Morris continued his good work, playing a fine defensive and offensive game. Perry and Tait were towers of strength at guard. Tait was in the game for the first time, and he did excellent work. Billy West made the most sensational run of the day, digging off 25 yards on a double pass. Winston is making a fine reputation as a punter, and especially on the kickoff. He sends the ball right down under the goal posts and so high in the air as to permit a tackle before the runner advances far.

Winston kicked off for George Washington, and the ball bounded over Edinger's head. Houser picked the ball up and was tackled in his tracks. Maryland hammered at the line and made 20 yards, when they were penalized 15 yards because the quarterback ran with the ball himself on a line play. On the next play one of the Maryland backs fumbled the ball and Will West gathered it in. After Washington had advanced the ball a short distance, Maryland got the ball on downs, and carried the pigskin to the 25-yard line, where they were held for downs, and the ball went over. Kirkman sprinted around the medicals' right end for 23 yards, being tackled on the 1-yard line. Frank West was pushed over for a touchdown, and Kirkman kicked a pretty goal. Score, Washington, 6; Maryland, 0.

Winston drove his toe into the ball and sent it to the goal posts, and Houser was tackled on the 15-yard line. Maryland was soon held for downs, and a series of line plays and end runs carried the ball to the 35-yard line, from which Winston tried for a goal from the field. His kick went outside of the posts. Senor Rodriguez kicked out from the 25-yard line and Bielaski caught the ball, bringing it back five yards. Kirkman negotiated twelve yards on a quarterback run, and Tait opened a big hole in the line for Perry, who added 15 more. Here Will West came in for his pretty end run. The ball was passed to Bielaski, who in turn passed it to West, and before the Maryland physician's discovered the trick he had circled left end and was dashing for the goal. He was tackled within a foot or so from the goal line, and his brother was pushed over for the second touchdown, but Kirkman failed to kick a goal.

The second half wound up in the dark, with the ball in Maryland's possession on our 30-yard line. Darkness prevented perfect playing.

Buff and Blue

The University Council at its meeting on the 15th of November, adopted "buff and blue" as the official colors of the University in a resolution stating that on and after February 22, buff and blue be substituted for orange and blue as the official colors of The George Washington University, and that until the 22nd of February, 1905, both sets of colors be recognized by the University.

Inter-College Rush Election Night

At eight o'clock on election evening, about twenty George Washington men met at the University and marched down the Avenue. When opposite the National Theatre a crowd of about fifty Georgetown men rushed them.

Notwithstanding the greater number of their opponents, the George Washington men shoved through and continued on their way, gathering new men at the college buildings and elsewhere, until the number warranted a rush on our part.

Police and detectives endeavored to prevent the clash and were rather roughly used by both crowds and compelled to withdraw, sending one of their number "home for repairs."

The column, now about a square long and marching in fours, marched in lock step with arms locked and gave the college yells almost continually until Georgetown was sighted in front of the National Theatre.

The column turned and like a mighty ram struck the braced column of Georgetown's best football men, including their heavy center, Given. The blow was terrific and irresistible crushing through very much as a thirteen inch shell would on hitting a mud fort.

A notice was flashed on the Post return screen notifying George Washington men to assemble at Fourteenth and F street. About thirty responded to this notice and charged down 14th street hill into Georgetown's men, who were in front of the New Willard. The police again interfered and each crowd agreed to settle the fight back of the Treasury.

From twelve to one-thirty the fighting continued here, with honors about evenly divided, although the George Washington boys were outnumbered by two to one.

Georgetown now called out "Georgetown men this way" and, disappeared down the Avenue leaving the field to the victorious George Washingtonians.

Philosophical Society

The 200th anniversary of the death of John Locke, the famous English philosopher, was commemorated Saturday afternoon in University Hall, under the auspices of the Society for Philosophical Inquiry. Dr. James McBride Sterrett, president of the society and professor of philosophy in the university, presided.

The first address, which was upon "Locke on Government," was delivered by President Needham, of the university. The next address, the subject of which was "Locke's Influence on Modern Psychology," was by Rev. Dr. E. A. Pace, of the Catholic University of America.

Dr. William T. Harris, United States Commissioner of Education, spoke on "Locke's Metaphysics of Casualty and Space." This address was followed by another upon the subject of "Locke's Personality," which was delivered by Hon. Frank Warren Hackett.

Dr. William Osler, of Johns Hopkins University, who has just been appointed to a position at the University of Oxford, which places him at the head of the medical profession in all Great Britain, brought the exercises to a close with a masterly address upon "Locke as a Physician," in which he emphasized the not generally known fact that Locke had been for many years a physician of no mean ability, and that the medical profession of today is indebted to him.

Columbian College

The Senior Class of the College, held its second meeting in West Mall on Thursday evening, November 3, at 6:30 o'clock, with Mr. Albert as temporary chairman presiding.

Owing to objections on Constitutional grounds the election of the first meeting of Mr. Albert as Class President, was not considered final by him, and the main object of the meeting was the adoption of the class constitution as drawn up by the committee appointed at the previous meeting for this purpose, and the subsequent election of officers.

After discussion and some alterations, the class constitution was finally adopted practically as drawn up by the committee, and the election of officers immediately followed, Mr. Harley acting as chairman. Messrs. Albert, Woodward, and Dawson were nominated, but on the withdrawal of Mr. Dawson, the ballot gave Mr. Woodward the election by a vote of 10 to 9. On motion by Mr. Albert and request of co-operation from his supporters, Mr. Woodward was declared elected unanimously.

Miss Maud E. McPherson was elected Vice-President, Mr. L. L. Smith, Secretary, and Miss Augusta De Forrest was elected Treasurer. All of these were elected unanimously to their offices.

The class then adjourned with all members save one present.

On assuming the duties of his office, Mr. Woodward in a remarkably fitting speech, briefly outlined his policy as Class President, and asked the support of the entire class to make this the finest class ever graduated from the Columbian College.

A meeting of the Junior Class of Columbian College was held Wednesday evening, November 9th, at 6:30, in the main building, for the purpose of discussing an entertainment to be given by the class in the near future. After various plans had been suggested by the members, it was decided that the affair should take the form of a dance in honor of the Freshman Class, with an invitation list including all the students of Columbian College. The date decided upon by the class is the Friday after the Thanksgiving recess, November 25, and it is hoped that everyone will keep that night free of any other engagement. The president, Mr. Collins, appointed the following to serve on the committee on arrangements for the dance: Miss Barber, Miss Taylor, Mr. Whitmore, Mr. Shaw, and Mr. Hemmick.

Antiquated furbelows and the coquettices of powder and patches will hold sway at the college, the night after Thanksgiving. On that occasion the Junior Class will give a colonial dance, true to the spirit and name of George Washington. Colonial gowns and powdered locks will be de rigueur for the girls, but the boys are rejoicing in their immunity from fancy dress. To exclude that bete noir of our college dances,—the jam—admission will be by card only. Whispers of the Junior's plans, which are getting abroad, suggest as brilliant an affair as previous successes of this most hospitable class. It has been many years since a class has retained in its Junior year sufficient vitality and enthusiasm to make itself an influential factor in the school life. That the Junior Class is prepared to sustain its well-won reputation for hospitality and college spirit, is a matter for congratulation to the entire college department.

The Sophomore Class, College, will give its first function of the season Wednesday evening, November 16, in the form of a class social to be held in the College building.

The Freshman football team was treated to a splendid surprise, Tuesday noon, in the form of a luncheon, tendered by the girls of that class.

American Beauty roses and crimson decorations served to lend a charm to the dainty repast, which the boys readily made way with. Mr. French filled the position of toastmaster, and called upon Magruder, the diminutive quarterback, Mr. Frank West, the lusty coach, of the team, and Mr. Hursey, the gallant half-back, for speeches. Considering the fact that freshmen were talking, the boys managed to survive the ordeal. After many protests on the part of the girls, Miss Evans condescended to tell a little story from the standpoint of a spectator of the famous Freshman-Sophomore game. It was regretted that Mr. Van Vleit was unable to be present owing to his confinement in the University Hospital.

The affair was an entire success and the hospitality and interest of the coeds is much appreciated by the football boys.

Thursday, November 10, the boys who had been guests of the previous luncheons given by the girls in the Tower Room, returned the compliment with a delightful luncheon in Dr. Carroll's room. Miss McCoy cooked delicious creamed oysters on the chafing dish, and the rest of the menu was equally enjoyable, showing very clearly that girls are not the only ones who can get up luncheons.

The guests lingered over the tables for more than an hour, all voting the affair a great success, and appreciating to the utmost the kindness of the boys. Those present were Misses McCoy, Stevens, McPherson, Barber, Watkins, Bethune, McCleary, Cochran, Taylor, Anna Albert, Ruth Albert, White, Merrill and McLeod, and Messrs. Whitmore, King, Albert, Winship, F. West, French, Sterrett, Collins and McCoy.

The Co Eds

The girls of the Freshman Class were entertained at the home of Miss Mahan, 1250 Columbia Road, on Monday evening, November 6th. During the greater part of the evening there was much interest and excitement caused by a new kind of progressive euchre, which the girls entered into with a genuine Freshman enthusiasm. When the game was called it was found that in a close contest Miss Richardson was in the lead, for which she was promptly rewarded by her hostess, and acknowledged as the best player by the rest of the girls. Refreshments were then served to the players as they were seated around the card tables, and an hour of merriment followed. Those present were the Misses Barbour, Birtwell, Evans, Field, Gilchrist, MacLeod, Mahan McMullan, Merrill, Mayer, Persons and Richardson.

Gymnasium for Girls

It is quite in accord with the growing greatness of George Washington University that there should be on foot the establishment of a gymnasium.

Athletics without question are a powerful factor in the full development of a personality. Athletic contests not only invigorate and vitalize one's physique but shape and strengthen character. They make a demand upon the mind for alertness and concentration upon the will-power, upon the morals for perfect fairness and honesty, upon one's composure and bigness of spirit. In short the culture of the gymnasium together with the culture of books gives one an all round development of character that enables one to take the world at an advantage.

The aim of a college curriculum is to bring to light and make of service all of one's native endowments. As the gymnasium is unquestionably an agency in accomplishing this, no college should be without one.

We feel that our university is now in such a position that she ought no longer neglect this duty incumbent upon her. There is a demand for this additional feature and no doubt the executive and managing board will see that the want is satisfied. At least our hopes incline us to think that what will be needed in the way of room, equipment and instructor will be provided.

It is for us, the student body, to assure the board of our support in this enterprise, and to show an interest and enthusiasm that will carry the movement along swiftly and bring it to a completely successful and gratifying culmination.

The Columbian Women.

The November business meeting of "The Columbian Women" was held in the University Building, Monday afternoon, November 14th. A letter was read from Mr. E. A. Hill, telling of Mrs. Hill's serious illness with typhoid fever and resigning her office as corresponding secretary. It was resolved that an expression of the sympathy of the society be sent to Mrs. Hill and that a substitute be appointed to perform the duties of the office until her complete recovery. Mrs. Herron was appointed to act in this capacity.

Reports were heard from Mrs. Munroe, chairman of the entertainment committee, and from Miss Amy Thompson, chairman of the scholarship committee. The social meetings of "The Columbian Women" for the coming winter, as planned by the committee on entertainment, promise to be most delightful. They will be held each month, most of them at the homes of members who have hospitably invited the society to be with them. Invitations will soon be issued for the November meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Carr. The scholarship committee reports that no definite steps had been taken toward the appropriation or enlargement of the scholarship fund, but that the methods of granting such scholarships in other college organizations had been investigated. The wish of "The Columbian Women" is to grant this scholarship as soon as possible, and with their earnest purpose and the continued prosperity of the club, it is probable that such a plan can be carried out by next year.

"The Columbian Women" have voted to retain as their own colors the orange and blue of the old Columbian University, thus becoming the only organization in the University having those colors, after all the departments shall have adopted the buff and blue.

D. R. I.

The D. R. I., that organization which made such a stir in the College Department last year, is going to have a celebration Friday evening, December 2, in which a number of friends as well as the entire membership will participate. Two large coaches have been engaged to take the party out to Reserve Hill Farm, the country home of Mr. George M. Saegmuller, one of the D. R. I. enthusiasts, five miles over the Virginia border. Here dancing and other amusements have been planned, to pass the time away until the start home.

One large luminous moon has been ordered for the occasion, but the U. S. Naval Observatory folk say that their plant is at present in such condition that no orders can be guaranteed for certain delivery, but all other arrangements have been complete for the jolliest kind of an evening.

OFFICIAL D. R. I. REPORTER.

New Quarters for the Architects.

"They are gone, the old familiar faces," and the Tower Room shall know them no more, for they have a better lodging place. The architects are rejoicing in the possession of a real domicile, the old parsonage of St. Matthew's Church. The move was made last week, old casts and all. It was hard to leave the old room—the very holes in the walls spoke volumes; there was where the mummy burst through, here where the icicle was propped that its drip might stimulate a leak, there where the feather duster bristled out, etc., etc.; and "Old Trusty," the cold stove, alias, the Class Smoker, it was hard to give it up.

They have gone to a house where the walls are whole and there is no stove to gladden the scene, for the heat is made in the cellar, forsooth. They are hardly straightened up, but hope to be by Wednesday night in time for the "Judgment." Three sets of drawings are to be passed upon, a bank, an orangerie and a public park.

The class now numbers about thirty-two, and is intensely interested.

An entirely new feature of the department and one which will stimulate to enthusiastic work is the Atelier to be conducted by Professor Percy Ash. It will be only for the advanced class and the competitions are to be along the lines of those of the Ecole des Beaux Arts. The students will go en loge for the first esquisse, December 3rd.

GEORGETOWN SATURDAY. The time has come at last and once again our team is to face Georgetown in the one great and important game of the season. Thoughts of the other games, won and lost, have been put from our minds and the single thought now is "How will the Georgetown game come out?"

The standing of our team and the success of the season will be ranked by the showing on Saturday.

We may as well be frank with ourselves. We can hardly expect to win the game.

But we will let Georgetown see that we can give her a good stiff fight and we will reduce the score of last year by a big margin.

The members of the team have been working like Trojans. Long after dark each night at University Field practice continues, steadily growing stronger and better. We can depend upon our team.

But how about the rooters? We must have them. The faculty has done its utmost and made Saturday a school holiday. It is now up to the students.

The occasion demands that hearty support be given our team and this end can best be secured by organization. In fact it is a necessity. A yell master should be selected before the game and every member of George Washington should unite with him in giving the team its deserved support and in making the day an historical one in the life of the University.

Don't let the project for a band fall through. The Medical Classes have made a good start and the Law and College must fall in and push it to the finish. The expense is trifling and all that is needed is a few good men with the proper spirit to make it go.

There's a lot of things that never go by rule;
There's an awful lot of knowledge
That you never get at college.

There's a lot of things you never learn at school." Popular Song.

One only has to turn to the advertisements in this issue of the "University Hatchet," to prove that there's a lot of knowledge you never get at college." The advertisements in the modern magazines and newspapers are the University Extension Course of Modern Business. They are so attractively illustrated and convincingly worded, that some of us hold our pocket books with both hands or we will be buying too liberally.

A great many advertisements barely suggest whether they are simply educating the reader to have them in mind when they purchase. With each issue we list a number of new advertisements—our columns present a great host of clean, high-grade business houses with whom you can deal with perfect safety and satisfaction.

To any one attending our recent football games the "George Washington" singing on our side lines is at the same time commendable and pitiable: commendable on the part of those few men who, almost alone, attempt to cheer our team on to victory, and pitiable in that we, so wretchedly and forlornly, lack anything like college songs that we can call our own.

In this stage of "leaps and bounds" in our university growth it is difficult to supply every element of university life all at once. We have begun to develop along athletic lines; each year we now put a football and baseball team into the field. In debate we are well abreast of our rivals. A gleam of social life now and then appears in the form of class or fraternity smokers and other social gatherings. A glee club has for some years been organized, and last year gave a creditable home concert; but the thing which we, as a university, lack, and which our occasions and functions and organizations need to round them out—the thing of all others most conducive to good fellowship and "universally spirit," is song—college song—George Washington University song—and this is precisely what we have not.

Debating Notes

The question submitted by the Columbian Debating Society to the Needham Debating Society for the first inter-society debate is the same question submitted by this University to Virginia, viz., "Resolved, That labor unions should incorporate as a condition precedent to demanding recognition by employers." The Needham Society has the choice of sides, and the debate takes place about December 10.

At last Friday's meeting of the Columbian Debating Society the question, "Resolved, That the ultimate success of Russia in the present conflict would be for the best interests of the whole world," was the subject of debate, with Messrs. Tellier, Melby, and Moore on the affirmative, and Messrs. Fairs, Baldwin, and Farley on the negative. The judges, Messrs. Flowers, Shelton and Hogg, gave their decision in favor of the negative, awarding first and second honors to Mr. Tellier and Mr. Baldwin respectively. Mr. Woodwell acted as critic for the evening, as the official critic participated in the debate.

At the last meeting of the Needham Debating Society the discussion was upon the question, "Resolved, That a joint commission should be formed by the Powers of the world for the purpose of investigating the alleged atrocities which are said to be frequently committed with the knowledge of the government officials in the Congo Free State."

The judges, Messrs. Bone, Calder and Lees, decided in favor of the affirmative, which was supported by Mr. Newmyer, Mr. Hickox and Mr. Spinks, who were opposed by Mr. Gates, Mr. Veley and Mr. Beeler.

Mr. Spinks received first honors and Mr. Beeler second.

Mr. Oliver C. Carpenter, Law '04, during the late campaign was private secretary to Mr. Hitchcock, in charge of the New York office of the Republican National Committee. Besides performing his duties as secretary, he made a number of speeches in New York city and attained quite a reputation as a political speaker. Mr. Carpenter was president of the Columbian Debating Society in the fall of 1903, and was a member of the team that debated Georgetown in May of that year. Mr. Carpenter is an indefatigable worker in the interests of his alma mater, and his brilliant speeches in the Junior Congress, as well as his excellent work in the public debates (having won the prize debate last spring), have stamped him as one of the ablest forensic orators of the alumni of the Law Department of this University.

Mr. Carl Muskat, Law '03, is another Columbian man who has distinguished himself in politics during the campaign just ended. He is a practicing attorney in Milwaukee, Wis., and he took a very active part in the bitter factional fight in the Badger State, and aligned himself with the La Follette faction. Mr. Muskat, it will be remembered, was chairman of the Intercollegiate Debate Committee that drew up the contract with Georgetown for the present series of debates. His first year of practice has been attended with much success, and a brilliant future is in store for him. He is now connected with one of the leading law firms of Milwaukee, Carter, Van Dyke & Carter, and he is mentioned as a candidate for assistant district attorney for Milwaukee county.

Those members of the Junior Congress that took an active part last year will be pleased to learn that A. F. Dawson, who took such an active part in the Congress work, was elected Congressman to represent the Second Congressional District of Iowa to succeed Judge M. J. Wade. The Second Iowa District was the only district in that State that has been Democratic for many years, and Mr. Dawson's victory over such an eminent political war horse as Judge Wade is a rare compliment indeed. Mr. Dawson is a young man of marked ability, and was one of the secretaries to Senator Allison, of Iowa, during the last session of Congress. He is the first member of the Junior Congress that has been elected as a member of the National Legislature, and the members of the University Congress extend their hearty congratulations. Judging from the excellent work that has been done by many of Mr. Dawson's colleagues in the Junior Congress, it is reasonable to expect that his election is but the forerunner of the election of other members to the House of Representatives. It has been suggested that a banquet be tendered Mr. Dawson by the University Congress when he arrives in Washington to take his oath of office.

The University Congress

At the last meeting, the University Congress had under consideration U. C. Res. 3, relating to the popular election of U. S. Senators. Mr. Tellier, of Vermont, and Mr. Mebane, of Georgia, lead the opposition, while Mr. Price of South Carolina and Mr. Merritt, of Arkansas, lead those in favor of its passage. Extemporaneous remarks were made by Messrs. Farley, Sams, Moore, Keefer, H. M. Caldwell, Christian, Yellott, Beck, Bone, Shelton, Morris and W. S. Caldwell. The arguments adduced by Messrs. Tellier, of Vermont, and H. M. Caldwell, of Tennessee, were received with marked effect. At 9:55 the vote was taken and proved to be in favor of the opposition by a bare majority of one.

Mr. Tellier was unanimously elected Speaker for the ensuing term.

U. C. 3 was made the special order for consideration at the next regular session to be held on November 19, 1904:

"Be it enacted by University Congress in regular session assembled, That immigration to the United States be, and is, hereby, further restricted."

Mr. Caldwell, of Tennessee, and Mr. Barrett, of the District of Columbia, will introduce the bill with the following argument:

Resolved, That immigration to the United States should be further restricted.

I. Necessity for further restriction.

A. Class of immigrant has changed.

1. Tendency of immigrants from Southern Europe to settle slums of large cities.

2. Disinclination to become permanent citizens.

3. Continued influx, and method of living cheapens labor.

B. Illiteracy on increase among immigrants.

1. The same tends to increase crime.

II. Means of further restriction:

A. Educational qualification.

B. Exclude all unskilled laborers, except those who have a bona fide intention to engage in agricultural pursuits, which intention must be carried out for a specified time.

Mr. Bone, of Illinois, and Mr. Behynes, of California, will lead the opposition with the following argument:

I. Former policy of the United States in regard to immigration.

- A. Has always been liberal.
- B. Has been successful.
 - i. It has built our cities.
 - 2. It has developed the resources of the country.
 - a. In manufactures.
 - b. In mining.
 - c. In agriculture.
- II. Its continuance is necessary.
 - A. Because it is an advantage to the country.
 - 1. Prosperity brought by immigrants.
 - 2. It adds to the national power of production.
 - 3. It will develop Western lands.
 - a. Much land undeveloped.
 - b. Insufficient unskilled labor in the West.
 - 4. As American enterprises are yet in their infancy,
 - a. And native labor is insufficient.
 - b. We must depend upon the immigrant.
 - III. The interests of American labor do not suffer by immigration.
 - A. Native laborer is elevated to higher employments.
 - B. Wages are not depressed by immigration.
 - 1. Skilled labor among immigrants is slight.
 - 2. Unskilled labor is not affected.
 - 3. Immigrants form non-competing groups.
 - C. They are ultimately Americanized.
 - IV. Present Immigration laws are satisfactory.
 - A. They exclude the undesirable classes.
 - B. And provide for their return.
 - C. And provide suitable executive power to enforce them.
 - D. Foreign countries look with disfavor upon immigration.
 - E. Defects, if any, lie in the execution of our laws.
 - 1. Remedy lies:
 - a. In practical exclusion from certain countries.
 - b. In practical exclusion from all.
 - 2. Such remedies are contrary to our

Medical Notes

Extensive improvements are being made in the library department; two rooms having been added to the one formerly used for that purpose. The room which has been used for the library is on the second floor, front, southeast corner. A large part of the hall on the second floor has been cut off by putting in a glass partition, thus securing as much light as possible. The "bandaging" room where minor surgery has been taught, has also been added. This subject in the future will be taught in room No. 2 on the first floor.

These three rooms are convenient, and are the best adapted for light of any kind in the building, and cover the entire front of the second floor. At present the number of volumes is about 1,800, a number of pamphlets, and unbound files of leading medical journals. Probably the largest donation of books was that of the late Dr. N. S. Lincoln. Donations have been recently made by Dr. Henry C. Yarrow, Dr. J. Wesley Bovee, Dr. D. K. Shute, of the Medical Department, F. A. Davis & Company, of Philadelphia, William Wood & Company, of New York, and Blakiston's Son & Company, of Philadelphia. Other donations will be very acceptable at this time. The medical editor suggests that each alumnus of the Medical Department take this opportunity to help build up a library for his Alma Mater.

During the vacation, Messrs. Dallas Sutton and Roy Heflebower, two Third Year medical students, volunteered to arrange the books in proper order, and they deserve much credit for the thorough manner in which this work was completed.

Since the opening of school, Mr. Arthur G. Compton, of the Third Year Class, and Mr. Thomas H. Legg, of the Second Year Class, have been appointed librarians. A library fee of two dollars was charged each medical and dental student upon registration; this amount to be used in purchasing new books. These additions will soon be made, and the library formally opened to students.

At a meeting of the Board of Lady Managers of the Hospital held last week the following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. Charles W. Richardson.
First Vice-President, Mrs. H. Walbridge.
Second Vice-President, Mrs. L. E. Payson.
Recording Secretary Mrs. F. W. True.

Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. W. McK. Stowell.

Treasurer, Mrs. S. E. Lewis.

The Sophomores have organized a football team with E. C. Wilson as captain. The places have not been assigned, but will be given next week. They have accepted a challenge to play the Freshmen medical team at an early date.

A movement has been started by the members of the Sophomore and Junior Classes to raise a fund to secure a band to lead our procession to the game next Saturday. The other medical and dental classes are sure to cooperate. How about our legal and scientific brothers? Will they not also help in the move? An assessment of ten cents each will easily pay for a good band. Take up your collections and confer with either Mr. H. McCollum or Mr. E. C. Wilson.

It is noted with a great deal of satisfaction, that the University has at least a yell which is daily growing in popularity. At the game last Saturday it was used with a great deal of force by the students from all the departments of the University. The yell has a swing to it that is characteristic of the name of the University. It is especially pleasing to the medical school that this yell has received the approval of the University at large, since it was introduced by one of the members of the Sophomore Class. One of the local papers commented favorably upon it.

The yell is as follows:

George Washington,
George Washinton,
Give 'em the axe, the axe, the axe,
Give 'em the axe, the axe, the axe,
Where, O! Where,
Right in the neck.

Not long since one of the professors for several successive evenings lectured overtime. A member of the class thought he would arrange to give him a gentle reminder when the hour was up. So he secured the services of a street musician and directed him to place his piano under the window of the lecture hall near the professor's desk, and to play a selection at a fixed time. Promptly at the time when the lecture should end, the musician began playing "Home, Sweet Home" with such effect, that the professor, entering into the spirit of the joke, ended his lecture, amid cheers from the class.

Law Notes

Mr. Donald H. McLean, president of the Second Year Law Class, has announced the following as the executive committee for the year: C. A. Badger, Adam M. Beeler, J. T. Nixon, H. W. Meyers, and C. N. Morris.

At a business meeting held Friday night by the Second Year Law Class, the question of a class smoker was considered. The executive committee was directed to take the matter up and report to the class at some date in the near future.

Alumni Notes

The following is clipped from the Washington Post of November 10, 1904:

Mr. and Mrs. Chris G. Storm will leave for Santa Cruz, Cal., the latter part of this week. Mr. and Mrs. Storm, though formerly residents of Washington, have for the past three years resided at Indian Head, Md., where Mr. Storm has been employed as a chemist in the government laboratory connected with the naval proving grounds. Mr. Storm will occupy the position of subinspector for the government at the California Powder Works, at Santa Cruz.

Mr. Storm, after graduating from the College as a Bachelor of Science in 1898, pursued special graduate courses in chemistry under Dr. Charles E. Munroe.

Mr. Granville Richard Swift, LL. B. 1902, has located at Fredericksburg, Va., in the practice of the law.

Mr. Christopher T. Clark, LL. B., 1903, has left Washington for a trip through the State of Ohio. He expects to visit most of the large cities of the State with a view to settling in one of them in the practice of his profession.

Mr. Arthur P. Spear, of the College Class of 1900, who has been traveling in Europe for the past year in the study of art, is now in Paris, where he is continuing his studies.

The trustees of Columbia University have announced the establishment of a new school of architecture on approved lines. The present school of architecture has been reorganized by the adoption of the atelier system in vogue in the schools of Paris. By the action taken the standard of the school will be raised, so that after July 1, 1905, it will become an advanced school. Admittance will be granted only to those who have spent not less than two years in some approved school or college.

Pro. A. D. F. Hamlin, now adjunct professor of architecture, is promoted to be professor of the history of architecture and placed in charge of the architectural school.

At the University of Iowa, all students who took part in the Spanish-American War, will receive free tuition.

West Virginia has submitted the following for debate to Ohio State University:

Resolved, That the present tendency of the United States to rapidly increase its navy should be condemned.

At the annual Brown-Dartmouth debate, to be held in Providence in January, Dartmouth will defend the affirmative of the following question:

"Resolved, That it would be advantageous for the United States to admit Canadian coal and lumber free of duty."

Yale, having the choice of a subject for this year's debate, has sent Princeton the following question: "Resolved, That it should be the policy of the United States not to hold territory permanently unless with the purpose that it shall ultimately enjoy statehood."

Princeton must choose her side of the question by November 9. The date of the debate is December 9. Last year Yale won both the Harvard and Princeton debates and hopes to duplicate the performance again.
